[illegible], It has come to the knowledge of this house that a communication from it to the parliament of the German empire, entirely friendly in its terms and respectful in its character, and sent through the regular channel of international communication, has been arbitrarily intercepted and returned by a person now holding the position of chancellor of the German empire; therefore be it

[illegible], That this house cannot but express surprise and regret that it should be even temporarily in the power of a single too powerful subject to interfere with such a simple, natural and spontaneous expression of kindly feeling between two great nations, and thus to distract from the position and dignity of the crown on one hand, and from the intelligent and considerate people on the other.

[illegible], That this house does hereby reiterate the expression of sincere regret at the death of Edward Lasker, and its sympathy with the parliament of the German empire, of which for many years he was a distinguished member.

THE NAVAL APPROPRIATION BILL.

Members Indulge in the Usual Quarrel—Randall's [illegible] First Class

WASHINGTON, March 10—(Special.)—The house occupied three days during last week in passing the naval appropriation bill and it ever it member [illegible] included in the regular annual appropriation. The greatest cause of complaint was the alleged penuriousness of Randall's committee, which had cut the bill down about $5,600,000 and put several branches of the naval department on short rations. The republicans grumbled because there was no money in the bill to pay for casting guns to be used on the new cruisers, and the delegation from the coast states grumbled because nothing was appropriated to provide for coast defense. Randall's answer to the first proposition was that no guns were needed until the cruisers were completed, and possibly none would be then, if the predictions of their failure were verified, and to the second he held that coast defense should be provided for in a separate bill.

Waldo Hutchins of New York had charge of the bill, but the debate became lively [illegible] these questions, and he grew disturbed [illegible] to Randall, who succeeded in preventing amendments being made. About the only amendment Randall consented to was the proposition offered by Belford authorizing the secretary of the navy to detail naval officers for duty as instructors in naval affairs in state institutions of learning. No man but Belford could have got this in, as Randall was inclined by any limits made in the bill and was exercising all his parliamentary knowledge to shut out obstructions, but there is a bond of warm friendship between Belford and Randall. In the Forty-seventh congress Belford induced the republican speaker to give Randall an outing [illegible] of clerkship, so that he might have a clerk to write up his letters, [illegible] Randall cannot afford a secretary. He has never forgotten this kindness.

THE FOUR MONITORS.

It appears that last year congress appropriated $1,000,000 with which to complete four monitors—the Puritan, the Terror, the Amphitrite and the Monadnock. Secretary Chandler made contracts for and allotted money to complete the first three, leaving about $185,000 for the Monadnock, for which no contract was made. The Monadnock, which lies at the Mare Island navy yard, is designed to defend the Pacific coast. By a wily provision the committee had intended to divert this money back into the treasury, on the ground, as Randall himself stated, that the Monadnock will be useless if completed. Her armor is seven inches and many foreign ironclads now carry guns which would pierce her through and through. Rand, Glascock and Sumner each opposed the proposition and with the aid of Reed attempted to have it stricken out. Reed demanded that Randall should order the Monadnock destroyed or complete her, but the Pennsylvanian refused to commit himself to either proposition. All he would say was that the completion of the monitor was money thrown away. Every one of the Californians explained the defenseless condition of San Francisco in case of a foreign war and Sumner said even China could in two months put ten vessels that could enter San Francisco bay unharmed.

A motion by Budd to strike out was lost 60 to 108.

Besides his belief that the Monadnock would be useless if completed it is understood that Randall like several senators has no confidence in Secretary Chandler and wants no more money expended by him. As for coast defense, he says the committee intend to provide for that in a separate bill.

THE STAR ROUTE CASES.

Gibson Resumes his Testimony before the Springer Committee

WASHINGTON, March 10.—A. M. Gibson continued his testimony before the Springer committee to-day. He reiterated the statement that the government selected the most complicated star route case for trial and rejected the plain and simple ones. The foreman of the grand jury told witness that the government did not wish to proceed with a case he considered so clear. He could not tell why no indictment was found against those who it has been proposed to proceed against by information.

Bliss said he was trying to run these cases in his own way. The ground of witness' [illegible] of [illegible] that a simple case—a case involving one or two routes—should be tried, not one involving 134 routes as did the case in which Dorsey was interested. Gibson gave his theory of the prosecution as follows: In the first place in the investigation which was begun the main object seemed to be to get as much as possible in the newspapers. The result was to raise expectation in the public mind which were never realized. Dorsey was the disturbing element. Owing to the fact that the gentleman who succeeded President Garfield had made a speech at a banquet in New York in which he was eulogized for political reasons, I think it was determined to proceed against him with [illegible] the strength of the case.

"Is it your judgment that the government felt compelled to proceed in that case because Dorsey was in it?" was asked.

The question of salary might have [illegible] something to do with it, replied Gibson. When counsel gets more than $200 a day, it is not in human nature to [illegible] all speed.

"Did any special counsel appear at the same time they were employed by the government for individuals in private cases?" asked Springer.

Bliss did for the national banks. He appeared before the commissioner of internal revenue. About $400,000 were involved.

Cook will be examined to-morrow.

A FORECAST

What Congress is Expected to Consider the Present Week

WASHINGTON, March 10—In the house to-morrow Morrison intends to report from the ways and means committee the tariff bill agreed to by a majority.

Members of the appropriation committee expect to report the Indian appropriation bill.

The measure for the retirement and recoinage of the trade dollar has been made the special order for Tuesday, and the committee on Pacific railroads has leave to call up from the calendar on Wednesday any bills that may then be perfected by the committee relating to the Thurman sinking fund act or to amounts due from Pacific railroads for surveying and patenting lands. The committee expect to complete to-morrow a bill on the former subject.

The bill in relation to burdens on the merchant marine, and to encourage the American foreign carrying trade has been made the special order for Thursday. All special orders are liable however to be pushed aside by the regular annual appropriation bills or revenue measures.

The first special order for the week in the senate is for Tuesday, when the house bill to regulate practice in patent suits is entitled to consideration. The Fitz John Porter bill and the bill to aid in the establishment and temporary support of common schools are both made special orders for [illegible] Wednesday. The last named measure will encounter a strong opposition from General Logan and other republican senators, but the prevalent impression is that it will pass. The educational bill will give rise to considerable discussion. It is possible one or more special orders will be set aside, giving place temporarily to the Mexican treaty, which will be taken up to-day, and consideration of which it is intended shall continue until a vote is reached.

CONGRESSIONAL CHIT-CHAT

ROSECRANS' YELLOWSTONE PARK RAILROAD BILL

WASHINGTON, March 10—(Special.)—General Rosecrans to-day introduced a bill to incorporate the Yellowstone Park Railroad Company and to aid in its construction, which was referred to the committee on Pacific railroads. This bill is a copy of the one offered in the senate February 2 by Lapham and which is now before the committee on railroads of that body. The bill authorizes the company created under it to build a railroad and telegraph line from Market lake, Oneida county, Idaho, to the foot of Mount Sheridan, in the Yellowstone National Park. The line is to go through the Teton range by Koarke pass, and after leaving Mount Sheridan is to extend to the upper geyser, to the lower geyser basin, to the upper falls of the Yellowstone and thence to some point on the Northern Pacific railroad. The object of the railroad is to facilitate travel to the Yellowstone park. The incorporators are to constitute a Yellowstone park commission, and are to meet in New York city six months after the passage of the act, and open subscriptions to stock, and when they have secured $100,000 they are authorized to organize as a railroad company and fix the amount of capital, which shall not exceed $10,000,000. The right of way through the national park is granted for 100 feet on each side of the track, and sufficient land for stations. Power is given the company to issue mortgage bonds, and the construction of the road must begin within two years. The maximum rate of fare and freight is fixed at seven cents per mile for passengers, and fifteen cents per ton for freight.

REPRESENTATIVE [illegible] CLAIM BILL

WASHINGTON, March 10.—The bill introduced by Representative [illegible] to-day to enlarge the jurisdiction of the United States courts, and to open the courts to all claimants, provides that any citizen or person who proposes to become a citizen of the United States may within two years from the passage of this act proceed against the United States to recover any sum alleged to be due him, all judgments rendered in such cases to be sent to the secretary of state, who shall annually transmit them to congress. If ratified by congress or not disapproved by it within two years the judgment shall constitute a valid claim against the government, which claim shall be considered a part of the public debt, drawing interest at 4 per cent from the date of judgment by court.

CAINE CONTINUES HIS ARGUMENT

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Delegate Caine continued his argument to-day before the house committee on territories. He denied the [illegible] but criticised the conduct of the present governor of Utah, whose real desire, he said, was not to stop polygamy but to bring about conflicts between the people there in order to [illegible] under the [illegible] majority of the people in the territory who are not Mormons. He said there is still feeling against those who were [illegible] was only a ring of adventurers, he added, [illegible] by Governor Murray, and [illegible] feeling for the [illegible]. They desired confusion in the territory so they had every thing to gain and nothing to lose.

THE RETURNED LASKER RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON, March 10.—Herr Von Eisendecher, German minister, called at the department of state to-day and presented to Secretary Frelinghuysen the returned Lasker resolution, together with the accompanying letter from Prince Bismarck. The president will probably send a communication on the subject to the house this afternoon.

A Dull Day in Wall Street—Vigorous Steps Taken to Eradicate the Foot and Mouth Disease—General News

Whisky Men Impatient

LOUISVILLE, March 10.—A large meeting of whisky men was held here this afternoon. Some [illegible] was expressed at the delay of congress in taking up the whisky bill. There was a very decided expression of opinion that the bill would probably pass. In the meantime it was decided to adopt at once the trade [illegible] protect [illegible] pass. A plan was proposed for getting bonded whisky from the warehouses [illegible] company that should be formed here for the exportation of whisky to British ports and to the islands of the [illegible]. This was regarded as necessary in order to save the tax on [illegible] which must come out of bond within the next two days. A dispatch was received from Cincinnati asking the whisky [illegible] to send a committee to that city to arrange for holding a mass meeting to take action on the refusal of congress to take up the bill. A committee was appointed.

Payne Wants an Organ

NEW YORK, March 10.—(Special.)—Among offers made to Mrs. Hugh J. Hastings for her interest in the Commercial Advertiser is reported one from certain democrats, among whom are William C. Whitney and Colonel Oliver H. Payne of Cleveland, who have wanted an organ in New York for some time. The amount offered is $[illegible],000 for [illegible] interest. The offer had the effect of raising Park [illegible] Goodwin's bid from $125,000 to $[illegible],000, at which a transfer, it is said, was agreed upon. Mrs. Hastings' three [illegible] object to giving control to young Harry [illegible] Goodwin, for whom the purchase was made. It is believed, however, that the Commercial's politics will be changed.

At the office of the Commercial this afternoon it was denied that a transfer is yet [illegible] and denied or that the politics of the paper will be changed. Sargent [illegible] of the resolutions of the house of representatives.

The next is a communication or memorandum of a conversation between Secretary Frelinghuysen and the German minister to the United States Von Eisendecher at the [illegible] memorandum of conversation, March [illegible], 1884. The minister said: At Secretary [illegible] ... my government to read to you and leave with you a copy of the dispatch which I hold in my hand relating to the resolution of condolence adopted by the house of representatives of the United States on the death of Dr. Lasker. The dispatch of Prince Bismarck thus presented by Von Eisendecher was as follows:

BISMARCK TO EISENDECHER

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, February [illegible], 1884.

The envoy of the United States of America has communicated with a note dated the 1st inst. the text of the resolutions of the American house of representatives dated the 9th in which the house expresses its regret at the death of Dr. Edward Lasker. Every appreciation on the personal qualities of a German [illegible] by a foreign authority can [illegible] be pleasing to our national feeling, especially when emanating from such an important body as the American house of representatives. I should therefore have gratefully received the sympathy [illegible] and [illegible] His Majesty [illegible] to ask His Majesty the emperor to empower me to [illegible] the [illegible] the resolution of the 9th of January did not [illegible] contain an opinion of the direction and effect of the political actions of Lasker which is opposed to my own [illegible]. In the resolution it is said that his firm and constant exposition of free and liberal ideas had materially advanced the social, political and economical condition of those people. From my knowledge of the course the political activity of Lasker [illegible] German people I have taken I cannot regard this opinion as one to accord more with the facts I have witnessed. I would not venture to oppose my judgment to that of so illustrious an assembly like the house of representatives of the United States had I not gained during an active participation in Germany's internal policies of more than thirty years an experience which encourages me to attach also to my own opinion certain weight. I must decline to ask His Majesty the emperor for the necessary authorization [illegible] and to [illegible] the house of representatives of the United States to the [illegible] [illegible] I could therewith have [illegible] [illegible] an opinion which I cannot [illegible]. VON BISMARCK.

FRELINGHUYSEN AND VON EISENDECHER

[illegible] reading and presenting to Secretary Frelinghuysen the above letter Minister Von Eisendecher [illegible] then further instructed to express to you Mr. Secretary Prince Bismarck's regrets that he found himself unable to comply with the wish [illegible] by [illegible] and also to leave with you if you desire it an unabridged [illegible] [illegible] in which he deferred to its highness. I [illegible] add my government cannot [illegible] responsibility [illegible] liberty [illegible].

The secretary [illegible] said: "Mr. Minister, in reply to your [illegible] return [illegible] of the resolutions let me say that the president cannot be supposed to have any wish in respect to what the German government may do in regard to the [illegible] of the copy of the resolutions of the house of representatives after it has been decided that it cannot be transmitted to the body for which it was particularly intended."

The Pacific states and territories acquired through their services have paid more than that sum annually into the treasury. The bill passed many republicans supporting it, among whom was Calkins of Indiana, by a vote of 227 to 4[illegible].

There appears to be no opposition to it in the senate. Logan, who is the soldiers' friend at present, is expected to champion it there.

Two Tragedies in Southern Oregon

JACKSONVILLE, March 10.—(Special.)—Silas Draper, a trader on [illegible] creek, shot himself through the head Friday night. Cause, financial troubles and excessive drinking. He was a single man.

On Saturday night at [illegible] Lew Colver was fatally shot at Phoenix by R. W. Olwell. Some drunken tramps were making trouble around Olwell's house and he thought their purpose was robbery. Mr. Colver ran over to Olwell's to ascertain the trouble and was mistaken for a robber by Olwell and shot. Colver died at 1 P. M. Sunday.

[illegible], March 10.—(Special.)—The Sterling mine started with a full head of water on Saturday morning.

A heavy snow storm is prevailing in the mountains.

The Recent Homicide at Tombstone.

TOMBSTONE, March 10.—The particulars of the killing of Captain Ed. L. Roberts by J. R. Adams, formerly of Victoria, B. C., are as follows: The suit of Adams vs. Roberts regarding the purchase of [illegible] was being tried in justice Fell's court. During an intermission Adams and Roberts stepped outside and got into an altercation which ended in Adams drawing a pistol, firing it within a few feet of Roberts' breast, and firing. Adams then ran but was overtaken and delivered to the county jail. Roberts died within fifteen minutes after the shooting occurred. The funeral of Roberts was the largest ever held in this city; flags were at half mast and the whole city was in mourning. The lynching of Adams which was threatened has been postponed to await the action of the courts.

Several Lives Lost by a Snowslide

SALT LAKE, March 10.—At 9 Friday evening a snowslide half a mile wide, extending from the summit down to Alta, swept away the works of the new Emma mine, killing Gus Lybecker, foreman; D. Wasson, machinist; and brothers Samuel [illegible], Charles Colgreen and wife, Edward Crocket, L. [illegible] Ilton, O. J. Johns, N. S. Delano, Willard Stephens and John Richardson. The bodies were all recovered except one. This was the worst slide ever known. In the Little Cottonwood the snow was piled forty feet high. Damage to the mine $15,000. The storm is too bad to bring the bodies down. Of the killed several leave families. George Collins, superintendent of the mine, came down to-day bringing the first news of the disaster.

The Lost Men Turn Up.

SPOKANE FALLS, March 10.—(Special.)—The men reported lost in the Coeur d'Alene mountains turned up at Trout creek after eighteen days' weary experience in deep snows and forests of the mountains utterly worn out.

Severe Storms Throughout the State

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—Last night a storm was the heaviest of the season. Two inches fell here and 1.20 at Los Angeles during the twenty-four hours ending at noon to-day. The Santa Clara valley, along the line of the South Pacific Coast railroad, is from Russell station to Aguasa a distance of eighteen miles, one was taken [illegible] the water in places being six feet in depth. The damage to the track is not so great as to property. The down train to Santa Cruz only got as far as Wright's, being blocked by a land slide near Felton. Passengers for Santa Cruz were transferred and on the return had to be again transferred between Newark and Halls, the track in one place being washed out. Gangs of section men were distributed along the line and as soon as the waters subside the road will be promptly repaired.

At Santa Rosa a high wind has been blowing all day and it rained incessantly. The creeks are booming and the lowlands are covered with water.

The signal service bureau reports the barometer rising rapidly all along the coast. No rain has been reported from any part of the state since 7 this morning.

Reports received to-day state that the Colorado division of the Southern Pacific was badly washed out for a distance of six miles east of Daggett. One break is of 1500 feet and two others are of 800 feet each. At Fresno the railroad bridge is impassable and passengers are transferred.

LORILLARD WILL RETIRE FROM THE TURF

NEW YORK, March 10.—(Special.)—The statement is made that George L. Lorillard will retire from the turf and sell his country seat, West Brook, with the training stables, track and thoroughbreds at Islip, Long Island. He is now at St. Augustine, Florida, where he went in the fall to spend the winter. His reason for retiring is his health, which is poor. The Long Island track consists of 1700 acres.

HER MAJESTY'S OPERA COMPANY

Patti the Recipient of Flattering Attentions—The Opening Performance

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—(Special.)—Patti is the lion or lioness of the hour. The Palace hotel court was brilliantly lighted in her honor last night and the Italian band serenaded her. Thousands of people filled the court and the corridors and there was as much curiosity to catch a glimpse of her as if she were the president of the nation or the winner of a prize fight. She meets all this with the usual grace of dramatic artists in accepting free advertising. She is autocratic as a princess and makes the most absurd demands upon the attention of the people. She claims the exclusive use of the elevator in the hotel and this afternoon when others came into it she protested very rudely and the other passengers were ordered to leave. Patti tried to get out of the elevator but not till it had begun its ascent, and she narrowly escaped being crushed between the upper beam of the door and the elevator floor and indeed barely escaped death, for which she has to thank the elevator operator who caught and pulled her in just in the nick of time.

A CROWDED HOUSE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—(Special.)—The Mapleson opera season opened to-night to a $12,000 house. The amount actually paid for seats was nearly double this, speculators getting as much as $25 per seat in many instances. For all the reserved seats $6 was paid in the box office for the back rows $4 and general admission $3. This is the schedule for Gerster nights, but for Patti nights the rates are $7, $4 and $3. The sale of seats for the first Patti night (Thursday) opens at [illegible] to-morrow, and at [illegible] hour (midnight) a line a block long had formed and is constantly growing in front of the box office. The prospects are that by the end of the season Mr. Mapleson will make up for his losses elsewhere during the past three months. The performance to-night was a great artistic success and there are not a few who claim that Gerster will be a greater favorite than Patti.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT

The Grand Opera house was packed this evening at the first performance of Her Majesty's Opera Company in "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Etelka Gerster in the title role. The theatre is the largest in the city. The receipts for to-night are $9,600; advance sales exclusive of Patti tickets $38,000. For Patti's performance on Thursday the advance sales amount to $10,000, of which $4000 was received by mail and telegraph. A line of expectant ticket buyers were waiting in front of the ticket office to purchase tickets for Patti to-night. They will remain in waiting until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

Messrs. Fleming Bros.

Sirs—I take this opportunity of informing you of the benefits I have derived from Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills. I have for two years past been afflicted with a severe pain over the eyes, accompanied with a nervousness and sense of dizziness, a malady beyond the power and skill of our physicians to relieve and cure, caused, as far as I myself could judge, by a diseased state of the liver and stomach. Some of the doctors tried bleeding and various other remedies were tried, but all in vain, for the deep-rooted disease still stuck fast. At last I procured a box of your valuable Liver Pills from a druggist here, and found after taking a portion of them that the disease and painful sensation over the eyes have almost entirely left me. I will close by advising all those afflicted as I have been, to procure the valuable medicine at once, and save much time and pain with little expense. With sincere gratitude and respect I remain, yours respectfully,

GEO. W. RUSSELL, Toronto.

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams, No. 248 Seventh street, testify that they have both been suffering with the liver complaint for about five years, during which time they have spent a large amount of money and tried many remedies, but to no purpose. Finally hearing of Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., they purchased four boxes, which they took according to the directions accompanying each box, and now pronounce themselves perfectly cured of that distressing disease.

ADULTERATION OF FOOD.

The demand for cheap articles of all kinds stimulates invention and activity to supply them. Most people forget that a staple article of any description cannot be produced and sold below certain well-established rates; and therefore they fall as easy and even as eager victims to those who profess to be able to supply genuine commodities below standard prices. The commodities so sold must, of course, be of inferior quality, more or less adulterated or counterfeit. Formerly the ingenuity of man in this line was mainly exercised in the production of textile and other fabrics which could be sold at low prices and guaranteed as good as genuine, but latterly the adulteration of food appears to be taking the lead of all industries of this description.

The New York legislature is now conducting an investigation on the adulteration of food and its effects on the public health, which is bringing out some remarkable facts. Butter has become a favorite article for these experiments in adulteration. Witnesses before the legislative committee, a few days ago, testified that 75 per cent. of all the butter invoiced from Chicago to New York is bogus, and that nearly all the wholesale dealers in butter handle imitation goods. A New York dealer testified that grocers in that city generally buy a tub of pure butter so as to have it in the store, but that they sell five tubs of oleomargarine to one of butter. If a woman does not like oleomargarine at 35 cents, the witness declared, she is shown some of the same make in another tub at 38 cents, and can as a rule be depended upon to say, "Oh, yes, that's better. I'll take some of that." It was computed by another witness that the sale of oleomargarine lowers the price of butter from five to ten cents per pound for the New York dairymen. Several witnesses testified as to the character of the imitation butter made in Chicago and sold in New York. Some of the witnesses were manufacturers of the stuff, and naturally claimed that all its ingredients were healthful. One of the manufacturers who testified—a Chicago man who places 10,000 pounds of butterine a day on the New York market—undertook to tell how the butterine was made, but, the report states, "left the members of the committee in a dense fog on the cooling process, on the plea of wishing not to give away the secrets of the trade. He was not willing to tell the committee what ingredients he used, but he felt confident that they were not injurious, though he had never asked the advice of a chemist on the matter. He denied that hogs which had died of cholera or any other disease were used in making butterine, but declared at the same time that his patent purifying process was sufficient to eliminate all germs of disease, if such hogs were turned in with the others." An ex-manufacturer testified that butterine is half raw hog's fat and unhealthy, as the lard is not made hot enough to destroy the animal germs in it.

Of course butter is one of the long list of food products which are imitated or adulterated. That many of the adulterants and substitutes are innocuous is probably true but that only mitigates the evil to the extent of indicating that the majority of venders are content with robbing their customers, and do not insist on poisoning them too. Not only the consuming class, but the honest dealers, suffer from the sale of sophisticated articles of food, for the man who deals in the imitation can afford to undersell his competitor who handles only the genuine article. In the interest of both the honest dealer and the consumer, it should be made compulsory in this country, as it is in England, for the grocer, apothecary or other retail dealer who sells an adulterated article to inform the purchaser of its real character. Failure to convey this information in England subjects the vender of adulterated goods to fine and imprisonment.

KUKLUX.

The supreme court has rendered another important decision in what are known as the "Kuklux Cases," taking an advanced position in support of the theory of federal power and in opposition to the doctrine of state's rights. Justice Miller, speaking for the court, says that "if this government is anything more than a mere aggregation of the delegated agents of other states and governments, each of which is superior to the general government, it must have power to protect elections, on which its existence depends, from violence and corruption." And, he adds, "it is only because the congress of the United States through long habit and long years of forbearance, have, in deference and respect to states, refrained from the exercise of these powers, that they are now doubted." He holds that the fifteenth amendment to the constitution, by its limitation of the power of states in the exercise of their right to prescribe the qualifications of voters in their actions, and by its limitation of the power of the United States over that subject, clearly shows that the right of suffrage was considered to be supremely important to national government and was not intended to be left within the exclusive control of states. He closes with this language: "In a republican government like ours, where political power is reposed exclusively in representatives of the entire body of the people, chosen at short intervals by popular elections, the temptation to control these elections by violence and corruption is a constant source of danger. Such has been the history of all republics; and although ours has been comparatively free from both evils in the past, no lover of his country can shut his eyes to the fear of future danger from both sources. If the recurrence of such acts as these prisoners stand convicted of is too common in one quarter of the country, and give omen of danger from the lawless and violent, the free use of money in actions arising from the vast growth of recent wealth in other quarters presents an equal cause for anxiety."

The dangers here referred to are undoubtedly great and increasing. There ought surely to be power somewhere in our system of government to prevent conspiracies against the freedom of the ballot, and the court rightly upholds the constitutionality of those sections of the revised statutes which forbid such conspiracies. But the question still remains, how is the federal government to proceed to enforce these statutes with vigor and effect? As we remarked a few days ago, our government is weakest in its executive machinery, and this weakness appears incidental to its character as a popular government. At present, under the existing limitations of the executive machinery a president might say, as Jackson did concerning a decision of the court, "Marshall has made a law, now let us see him enforce it."

The census report for 1880 contains the most elaborate and valuable statistics of railroads ever gathered by any country in the world. The cost of all the railroads of the country and their equipment is put at something over $4,530,000,000; their aggregate funded debt reaches $2,390,000,000, or as much as the total interest-bearing national debt and the municipal debt of the country combined; and their income is $661,000,000 per year, of which $527,000,000 goes for expenses and $134,000,000 to the profit account. These roads are owned by 330,000 persons, a much larger number than is generally supposed. The number of employes is 410,000. The railroad interest is without doubt the overshadowing interest in this country.

"There are fewer disturbances," says the Savannah, Georgia, News (Dem.) "between the whites and negroes on account of politics than might be reasonably expected. The whites do not intend that their local governments shall fall into the hands of ignorant negroes or white adventurers."

LEGAL TENDERS.

A decision has been rendered by the supreme court of the United States in the long pending legal-tender case of August D. Juilliard vs. Thomas S. Greenman, brought to it by a writ of error to the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York. The question presented by this case, as stated by the court, is:

Whether notes of the United States issued in time of war under acts of congress declaring them to be legal tender in payment of private debts and afterward in time of peace redeemed and paid in gold coin at the treasury, and reissued under the act, can under the constitution of the United States be legal tender payment of such debts.

The court decides that congress has the power to issue obligations of the United States and to make them a legal tender as payment of private debts, and having this power, it is a political question to be determined by congress, when the exigency arises, at any particular time in war or peace, whether this power shall be exercised. The opinion was read by Justice Gray, and was concurred in by the entire court except Justice Field, who delivered a dissenting opinion, standing bravely by the views expressed by him on previous occasions. It follows, says the court, "that the act of May 31, 1878, is constitutional, and the circuit court rightly held that tender in treasury notes reissued and kept in circulation under that act was tender of lawful money." Justice Field, in his dissenting opinion, argues that if there be anything in the history of the constitution which can be established with moral certainty, it is that the framers of that instrument intended to prohibit the issue of legal tender notes, both by the general government and by states. From the decision of the court he sees only evil likely to follow. If the government can make money it may be asked, "Why borrow it? Why should congress not at once issue a sufficient amount to pay all the bonds of the United States? Why pay interest on a thousand million dollars of bonds when it can in one day make money to pay them? It would not indeed surprise one if there should be a call from many quarters upon the government to issue such notes for bonds. Who can object to it if the doctrine declared by the court is sound? And why should there be any restraint upon unlimited appropriations by the government for all imaginary schemes of public improvement, if printing presses can furnish all the money needed for them?"

In February, 1870, the supreme court decided that congress had no power to make United States notes a legal tender for pre-existing debts, and the reasoning of that opinion was to the effect that the legal tender acts were unconstitutional. After changes in the membership of the court, Justice Strong being appointed in place of Grier, resigned, and Bradley being added as a new member, the court decided the following year, May, 1871, by a majority of one, that congress had power to make United States notes a legal tender for debts contracted both before and after the passage of the acts. Chief Justice Chase and Justices Nelson, Clifford and Field presented a dissenting opinion, in which they declared their "conviction that the making of these notes a legal tender was not a necessary or a proper means to the carrying on of war or to the exercise of any express power of the government." These conflicting opinions tend to diminish confidence in the courts and at the same time strengthen the conviction that it is governed too much by political considerations, or questions of public expediency. The last decision will be a surprise to the country, for there had been strong ground for the belief that the present court would decide that congress had not the power to issue legal tender notes. The question of expediency ought never to affect the decision of such cases, for when it does it enables any party in control of congress and the executive to procure any decision demanded by a party exigency by increasing the number of the judges, and "packing the court." In this instance Justice Field is to be commended for his boldness and consistency in rising above the question of expediency and viewing the case simply as a jurist.

"PROTOPLASMIC" JOURNALISM.

The New York Independent, under the head of "protoplasmic legislation," says: "For ten years past the Indians of the Grande Ronde reservation in eastern Oregon have held an annual legislature. Hereafter it is to be held biennially. At the last session the assembly consisted of nine representatives, a president, sergeant and clerk. Twenty-nine laws were passed, from which the following have been selected as interesting specimens of what might be termed protoplasmic legislation. For brevity, simplicity and directness they might profitably be commended to the attention of the illustrious occupants of senatorial seats in Washington."

Among the selections from the statutes which are published the Independent especially commends to the study of the general public the two following:

If any doctor is called on to wait on a sick person and the doctor say he want to doctor the person himself until he die on his hands such doctor upon trial and conviction is to be fined $20 and cost but if such doctor have another doctor called in or say he cant cure him and request to have another doctor he ant to be fined or say he can cure the person.

If any married man swop rings or hankerchiefs with yong woman or widdows, that will cause trouble with his wife and family such man after trial and conviction will be subject to fine of $10 and cost of court.

These statutes are certainly "interesting," and they may be "protoplasmic," but they are undoubtedly bogus. The Grand Ronde reservation is not in eastern Oregon, but in the western part of the state. Neither are Indians in this part of the country in the habit of holding legislative assemblies. They never pass provisional laws. Their laws, such as they have, are rather ex post facto. When a thing is done which demands attention, they hold councils to see what shall be done about it; and in such councils they are controlled by the traditions of their tribes. The article in the Independent is rather interesting as a specimen of what might be termed "protoplasmic" journalism.

A PANICKY APPEAL.

The New York World, a journal which aspires to the position of national organ of the democratic party, directs its thunders every day against those democrats who control the policy of its party in the house of representatives. It tells them that the party cannot possibly carry the presidential election in November on the tariff doctrines of Morrison and Carlisle, and that it can carry New York only on the platform of 1868, which contained the following resolution:

A tariff for revenue upon foreign imports, and such equal taxation under the internal revenue laws as will afford incidental protection to domestic manufactures, and as will, without impairing the revenue, impose the least burden upon and best promote and encourage the great industrial interests of the country.

The World reminds its brethren that this was the platform upon which Seymour carried New York in 1868. It is well to remember, however, that the platform had little or nothing to do with that result. New York was carried on that occasion by the colossal election frauds perpetrated by the Tweed dynasty, which "raised" the majority in the metropolis to a figure exceeding by tens of thousands the highest point it has ever reached since. Nobody at that time was paying any attention to the position of the two parties on the tariff question. Reconstruction and other issues growing out of the war were paramount. But the World's panicky argument shows how great is the perturbation of the democratic mind at this time on the tariff question, and how impossible it will be to pledge the party to any definite position against "protection."

A bill has been introduced in the Ohio legislature which provides that all contracts between parties offering to sell what they do not own or to purchase what they do not intend to receive, shall be null and void. All transactions by "margins" or "futures," are declared to be criminal acts, punishable by fine or imprisonment. The offer to sell or purchase makes a complete crime, whether the offer shall be accepted or refused. This is a stringent measure, and should it become law it would go far toward demonstrating whether gambling in grain, provisions, cotton, oil and other commodities can be restrained or prevented by penal legislation.

PROSPECTS OF A SILVER STANDARD.

The movements of our foreign trade, which have led to turning the current of the gold movement into an outflow, calls attention to the increased danger of the demonetization of that metal in the United States threatened by the presence of large amounts of silver hoarded in the United States treasury under the operations of the compulsory coinage law which as long ago foretold, can have no other result than to force gold to a premium.

The change to the silver dollar as the basis of the business of the country will simply mean the inflation of prices 15 per cent., the transaction of foreign trade through the hampering and annoying medium of gold brokerage and the resumption of gold speculation with all the demoralizing reactions upon trade which were experienced from 1862 to 1879. The fluctuations, if they come, will be of a less degree, and there is good hope that they will not come at this juncture. But the fears of that result which are awakened by the exportation of a few millions of gold are significant and not the less so because they are years the most important effect in six of the attempt of congress in 1878 to legislate 85 cents worth of silver into an equality with 100 cents' worth of gold.

Of the 48,712,400 acres of land in the Northern Pacific, only 10,596,000 acres were earned down to the expiration of the grant in July, 1879. The number of acres that will be declared forfeit if the house bill becomes a law will be 38,116,400.

THE PROPER TIME FOR CUTTING TIMBER.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

Believing that any ideas relating to this matter will be of some interest to your readers in this heavily-timbered region, I therefore propose giving you my opinion and conclusions arrived at after having experimented upon the cutting and use of timber for various purposes for a number of years here upon the Pacific coast.

This, we are all well aware, is a very important question, and one very difficult to answer, since it requires observation and experiment through a course of many years to arrive at any definite conclusion; and it is a question, too, upon which even at the present day there exists a great difference of opinion among men who, being engaged in the lumber business, are thereby the better qualified to form an opinion.

Many articles have been published in the various papers of the country upon this question for the past 30 years, but in all cases an opinion only has been given, which, at the present day, such is the advance and higher development of the intellectual faculties of man, that a mere opinion upon any question without sufficient and substantial reasons to back it are of little value.

My object in writing this is not simply to give an opinion, but how, and the methods used by which I adopted such conclusions, as well also as the reasons why timber is more durable and better when cut at a certain season of the year than when cut at any other.

In the course of my investigations of this question for the past thirty years, I have asked the opinion of a great many persons who have been engaged in the lumber business in various sections of the Union, from Maine to Wisconsin, and they all agree upon one point, viz.: That the winter time is the proper time for cutting timber, although none have ever been able to give a reason why, only the fact, as such was the case, and therefore drawing the inference that it was the proper time when timber should be cut, and so it is, for one reason only, however, and that is the convenience for handling or moving timber upon the snow and ice.

It was while engaged in the business of mining in the mountains of California in early days, and having occasion to work on among timber, in removing stumps, etc., it was while so engaged that I noticed one peculiar fact, which was this, that the stumps of some trees which had been cut but two or three years had decayed, whilst others of the same size and variety of pine which had been cut the same year were as sound and firm as when first cut. This seemed strange to me, and I found upon inquiry of old lumbermen, who had worked among timber all their lives, that it was strange to them also, and they could offer no explanation; and it was the investigation of this singular fact that led me to experiment further upon the problem of cutting timber.

It was not, however, until many years after, and when engaged in clearing land for farming purposes, that I made the discovery why some stumps should decay sooner than others of the same size and variety, even when cut a few months afterward.

I had occasion to clear several acres of land which was covered with a very dense growth of young pines from two to six inches in diameter, (this work for certain reasons is usually done in the winter). The young trees not being suitable for fuel are thrown into piles and burned upon the ground. Such land, therefore, on account of the stumps is very difficult to plow, as the stumps do not decay for three or four years, while most of the larger ones remain sound even longer.

But, for the purpose of experimenting, I cleared a few acres of ground in the spring, cutting them in May and June. I trimmed the poles, leaving them upon the ground, and when seasoned hauled them to the house for fuel, and found that for cooking or heating purposes they were almost equal to oak, and it was my practice for many years afterward to cut these young pines in May or June for winter fuel.

I found also that the stumps, instead of remaining sound for any length of time, decayed so quickly that they could all be plowed up the following spring.

From which facts I draw these conclusions, that if in the cutting of timber the main object is to preserve the stumps, cut your trees in the fall or winter; but if the value of the timber is any consideration, cut your trees in the spring after the sap has ascended the tree, but before any growth has taken place or new wood has been formed.

I experimented for many years also in the cutting of timber for fencing, fence posts, etc., and with the same results. Those which were cut in the spring and set after being seasoned were the most durable, such timber being much lighter, tougher, and in all respects better for all variety of purposes.

Having given some little idea of the manner in which I experimented, and the conclusions arrived at as to the proper time when timber should be cut, I now propose to give what are, in my opinion, the reasons why timber cut in early summer is much better, being lighter, tougher and more durable than if cut at any other time. Therefore, in order to do this it is necessary first to explain the nature and value of the sap and the growth of a tree.

We find it to be the general opinion at present, as it perhaps has always been among lumbermen and those who work among the timber, that the sap of a tree is an evil which must be avoided if possible for it is this which causes decay and destroys the life and good qualities of all wood when allowed to remain in it for an unusual length of time, but that this is a mistake, as I will endeavor to show, not that the decay is due to the sap, but to the time when the tree was felled.

We find by experiment in evaporating a quantity of sap of the pine, that it is water holding in solution a substance of a gummy nature, being composed of albumen and other elementary matters, which being deposited within the pores of the wood from the new growth of the tree; that these substances in solution which constitute the sap, and which promote the growth of the tree, should have a tendency to cause decay of the wood is an impossibility. The injury results from the water only, and the improper time of felling the tree.

Of the process by which the sap promotes the growth of the tree, the scientist informs us that it is extracted from the soil and flows up through the pores of the wood of the tree, where it is deposited upon the fibre, and by a peculiar process of nature the albumen forms new cells, which in process of formation crowd and push out from the center, thus constituting the growth of the tree in all directions from center to circumference. Consequently this new growth of wood, being composed principally of albumen, is of a soft, spongy nature, and under the proper conditions will decay very rapidly, which can be easily demonstrated by experiment.

Hence, we must infer that the proper time for felling the tree is when the conditions are such that the rapid decay of a new growth of wood is impossible, and this I have found by experiment to be in early summer after the sap has ascended the tree, but before any new growth of wood has been formed. The new growth of the previous season is now well matured, has become hard and firm and will not decay. On the contrary, the tree being cut when such new growth has not well matured, decay soon takes place and the value of the timber is destroyed. The effect of this cutting and use of timber under the wrong conditions can be seen all around us. In the timbers of the bridges, in the trestlework and ties of railroads and in the piling of the wharves will be found portions showing rapid decay, while other portions are yet firm and in sound condition.

Much more might be said in the explanation of this subject, but not wishing to extend the subject to an improper length, I will close. I would, however, say in conclusion that persons who have the opportunities and the inclination can verify the truth of a portion, at least, of what I have stated in a simple manner and in a short time; for instance, by cutting two or three young fir or spruce saplings, say about six inches in diameter, mark them when cut, and also mark the stumps by driving pegs marked to correspond with the trees. Continue this monthly for the space of about one year and note the difference in the wood, which should be left out and exposed to the weather until seasoned.

Is Tilden Inevitable?

Boston Herald, Ind.

Who is Mr. Tilden's candidate, if it be not Mr. Tilden? The head of the "old ticket," who has for some months past been kept, or kept himself, in the background, has again been seen by an ardent democrat who desired to know if he could be persuaded to stand for the presidency. One little word, spoken even with a whispered emphasis, would have settled the question. But the word was not spoken. "I can give you no assurance—I prefer a quiet life—the task is great," was the substance of the only reply vouchsafed by the trembling and enfeebled old man. Meanwhile every other candidate who has been mentioned has been belittled or sandbagged by the newspaper which is recognized as Mr. Tilden's confidant. None of them will do, for one reason or another, or else their virtues are set forth with a mocking Mephistophelian spirit that is more daunting than faint praise, and more effective than open opposition. Is Tilden inevitable? Must this decrepit Old Man of the Sea be put astride the shoulders of the "poor democracy?"

DIED OF HIS WOUNDS.

WILLIAM ROSE EXPIRES AT THE CITY JAIL YESTERDAY.

Blood Transfused from a Brother's Arm Sustains Life the Last Hour—Third Murderous Death in Two Months.

William Rose, who was stabbed by Thomas Sheridan in the bar room of the International hotel on Sunday evening, March 2, died yesterday afternoon at twenty minutes to two o'clock from the wound's that he had received. Through eight days of constant suffering and continual wasting away of his strength, with remarkable fortitude he held up, complained even of the pain. He realized how almost hopeless was his condition from the very first, and though expressing a wish that the one chance in a thousand for his recovery might be given to him, yet he talked quietly and even cheerfully of the near approach of death. Some few words that he let fall at the time told what an ambitious mind he possessed and how great his disappointment must have been when he realized that the common mound the grave was distant but a few days. Only once when he mentioned his mother's name did the tear drops start and his eyes and roll down his pallid cheeks.

His father and brother were most assiduous in their watchful care and attention to him, to his wants and scarcely left his bedside. Their presence kept him cheerful and seemed to even revive his failing energies. As a last resort the difficult operation of transfusion of blood was attempted by the attending surgeons. The wounded man's brother Edward offered himself as the living reservoir from which to draw the vital fluid that it was hoped would restore the wasted frame. As this operation which, it is believed, was then attempted for the first time in this state, there were present Drs. Wheeler, McKenzie, Wells and Harry Lane. The two brothers, one in the full vigor of life, the other scarcely breathing, were side by side and a vein in the arm of each was opened. Through a tube the bright blood coursed freely into the veins of the wounded man until eight ounces had been transfused. There was a marked improvement in the wounded man's appearance, and for nearly an hour one brother's blood kept the other brother alive. But there was no foundation left, and quietly and peacefully life went out.

Later in the day the surgeons made a post mortem examination of the wound, finding, as they had supposed, that the sub clavian artery was severed. At inquest was also held by the coroner, and a verdict returned making Sheridan responsible for the death of Rose. The body will be embalmed and taken to the home of the family at Helena, Montana, for interment.

When Sheridan, who is confined in the county jail, heard of the death of the victim of his murderous knife, he expressed for the first time since the stabbing sorrow over the deed. He was immediately transferred from the main cell to the iron cage recently vacated by Bloxam.

Parties, travelers and others frequently inquire for copies of the DAILY OREGONIAN, which cannot be obtained anywhere in town. We would suggest that Mr. Charles Grissen, our gentlemanly newsdealer, make arrangements to keep it on sale.

There is considerable talk in regard to the defeat of the mortgage tax law. Many are disappointed. It will greatly reduce our county funds for this year. There seems to be a belief among most of the tax payers that a law can and will be made by the next legislature that will carry out the intent of the law just defeated.

SCHOOL ELECTION.

Charles H. Dodd Chosen Director and Wm. Church, Jr., Clerk.

Yesterday afternoon the annual school election for this district took place. There was no unusual excitement and only an average vote was polled. A few showers kept many ladies from the polls though quite a number came in carriages. The total vote was 947, a falling off of 104 from last year. Following is

THE RESULT.

| FOR DIRECTOR. | 1st | 2d | 3d | Total |

THE EAST SIDE.

SCHOOL ELECTION DISTRICT NO. 9.

At the annual school election of district No. 9, East Portland, yesterday J. A. Newell was elected director and George Perry clerk, the latter having no opponent. The number of votes cast was [illegible], the count showing the following result:

For director—J. A. Newell 107, G. E. [illegible] 0, J. H. Carse 52, scattering 2.

For clerk—George Perry 250, blank 2.

This vote is over double that of last year's election which was accounted for by the interest taken in the contest for director. A determined effort was made by the opponents of Mr. Newell to defeat him, but his friends were equal to the emergency. Mr. Newell was the director whose term of office had expired, or he will now enter upon his third term of three years in that position. He is credited with much of the work necessary in bringing the schools to their present high standard of efficiency and his reelection over two gentlemen well qualified for the position is a flattering endorsement of his share in the administration of school affairs. Mr. George Perry, the school clerk elect, is well known as a [illegible] in this city and every way qualified for the position. The ladies took an unusual interest in the election, about one fifth of the vote being cast by them. The election took place at [illegible] corner of Third and I streets. J. M. Shiver, James McGreevy [illegible] Paul Houle judges. E. C. Myers and S. C. Beard clerks.

THE SKATING RINK.—East Portland [illegible] will be open [illegible] night this week [illegible].

INDEPENDENCE, March 10.

L. W. Robertson left for Ashland, Oregon, where he expects to open a branch music store.

Property in Independence is not very high. A pretty albeit house and corner lot, with a good well on it, sold for $285.

Mr. Heidlinger and family will leave here to-morrow for Tacoma, where they intend to make their home in the future.

The friends of George W. Belt will try to get for him the nomination for district attorney. A better selection could hardly be made.

The steamer Isabel has been chartered by an Independence crowd to take them next Wednesday to Salem to attend the exhibition to be given there.

A long felt want (not a newspaper), but a harness shop has been started here, and if the town could only get a good butcher we would be full rigged.

The all absorbing topic is Judge Deady's decision in the mortgage tax case. I have not heard a single man but what hopes the next legislature will remedy the defect in the law.

Last Saturday, while some men were rolling logs down the bank into the water, Charley Green, an eight-year old son of Thomas Green, came along and childlike, helped to push a log. Somehow he lost his balance and fell right in front of the log, which rolled over him, crushing his head and the bones in his body, killing him instantly.

THE LETTER OF "X."

PORTLAND, March 10.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Is it [illegible] too much to say that a leading newspaper like THE OREGONIAN has any mission beyond [illegible] of news, it is the educator of the popular taste and moral tone?

The [illegible] by your management through which you have become the most powerful journal of the [illegible] gives me courage to [illegible] that seems specially invited by the [illegible] the last Sunday Oregonian [illegible] a labored, witty, anonymous letter [illegible] insult and abuse [illegible] have [illegible] position [illegible].

I had [illegible] write [illegible] with [illegible] of [illegible] forty years of [illegible] of this year [illegible] can call [illegible].

When a writer [illegible] patent [illegible] to bring [illegible] initials [illegible] might properly have found this if he had [illegible] with [illegible] dignity. But he has been willing to illustrate the [illegible] of Portland [illegible] between skulking and sneaking [illegible] public gaze.

His letter contains valuable matter [illegible] careful attention but when he attacks the integrity and business character of men such as those who constitute [illegible] board and [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] he is guilty of brutal vulgarity and a coward unworthy of any manhood.

It is not a sufficient [illegible] to the demands of the highest [illegible] in this early community to say that such a writer leaves his name with the editor [illegible] assault on private citizens if the [illegible] and the public has a right to know what weight [illegible] to attach to the act.

We have a wonderful [illegible] and we laugh at the [illegible] barbarity of some of our neighbors but it is [illegible] Mexican or Scot. A [illegible] could not have [illegible] such a [illegible] for publication except over his own signature.

[illegible] nothing farther to say. If I have [illegible] the attention of the [illegible] people in keeping to the necessity of teaching [illegible] honor as a part of highest [illegible] I shall have said enough. I hope I have not said too much.

ALFRED F. SEARS.

Mr. Tilden's Hands.

New York Herald, Ind.

The telegraphic report of General Thomas J. Clunie's report on his return to San Francisco of his visit to Gramercy Park fails to do justice to its spirit and environment. According to the Chronicle it appears that the California democrats who swarmed about their returning emissary on the [illegible] [illegible] cheered [illegible] at the [illegible] of Mr. Tilden's health and [illegible]. The intimation that Mr. Tilden had omitted to shake hands with his Occidental visitor threw them into profound dismay regarding his state of health. [illegible] contemporary relates that they thereupon [illegible] General Clunie to make his affidavit that the [illegible] ex president is still in the [illegible] to take the [illegible] of [illegible]. At the same time the Atlanta Constitution published an interview had with Mr. George W. [illegible] in [illegible] N. H., when in that pillar of the New Hampshire democracy received his political confession of faith, and declares "My candidates are Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendricks if they are well enough to hold up their hands and be sworn in."

Such universal and current democratic solicitude concerning Mr. Tilden's hands indicates that the party [illegible] its ancient leader is in extremis. Under normal circumstances a possible candidate places himself in the hands of his party. Here, however, is a great national party placing itself unreservedly in the hands of a candidate. Rarely if ever has there been a more signal instance of putting the cart before the horse. It calls to mind the relations of Moses to the children of Israel when after their journeyings in the wilderness of Sin they pitched their tents in Rephidim. Moses was obliged by their importunities not only to tap the rock in Horeb that the people might drink, but he set upon a hill and held up his hands so that they might vanquish the Amalekites. Moses' hands, it is related, were heavy, insomuch that they had to be upheld by mechanical and other appliances. The democracy apparently are proposing to tease Mr. Tilden into both stirring his barrel with his magic hand stirrer, so that their famished souls may drink, and to let himself and his friends be held up while they go forth to fight the Amalekites. This curious but by no means original plan for getting the democracy out of a tight place might work but for the fact that miracles unfortunately have gone out of date.

MURDER AT THE SOUTH.

New York Evening Post.

One of the good signs at the south is, however, that the local press begins to denounce particular murderers with courage. Formerly they used to confine themselves to denouncing murder in general in such a way as not to offend any one of the always numerous local murderers, knowing well that if they did a street fight would probably be the result. There is at least one such paper in South Carolina, the Charleston News and Courier. In Florida, which is more and more sought every year by northern visitors and colonists, the drunken black-guard "cavaliers" are making themselves scarcer and scarcer, but there are still traces of their presence, as was shown the other day by the deliberate murder on a hotel piazza of the proprietor, by a man who informed him after shooting him that he had been [illegible] waiting his wife, which was the first the poor victim knew of it. The Florida Times Union, published in Jacksonville, is making there a good fight for civilization by preaching—strange as it may sound here—the duty of newspapers to denounce specific murderers in order to make up for the ignorance and remissness of jurors. Its theory is that the ordinary southern murderer is much more sensitive to newspaper criticism than he is to the action of the law. He does not mind being prosecuted or even convicted, knowing that nothing serious will come of it, but editorial denunciation he winces under probably from its association in his mind with the horrors of "posting." One of the grotesque customs of the fighting world down there is that if one ruffian calls another names on a piece of dirty paper and sticks it on a tree or gate post, the other is bound to feel or pretend to feel unutterable pain and indignation, and run around after him with a knife or pistol and have no sleep or appetite till he "cuts him or shoots him."

Plain Talk from Copiah County.

New York Herald, Ind.

Many southerners insist—between campaigns—that the colored people vote as they please and are not disturbed in exercising their political rights. A few days ago, however, a Copiah county (Miss.) democrat informed Senator Hoar's outrage committee that "if you should send your biggest man—General Grant—down into our county to organize the negroes he would be killed at once," and this expression of sentiment was applauded by a crowd of democratic listeners. As organization is absolutely necessary to men who expect to work together politically, the rights of colored voters appear to amount to nothing in Copiah county, unless this witness is a mere braggart more fond of the sound of his own voice than of the truth. The same witness laid all the troubles of last autumn to the independents and said of this faction: "We would have taken human life if it had been necessary in order to get rid of them. Yes, we would do it if they had a majority of the votes." It will do no good to wave the bloody shirt over this statement, for the witness and those who believe with him cannot be disfranchised or punished for their opinions, but the testimony will keep emigrants and capital from entering Copiah county. No man of property or self respect will trust himself in a community that believes in overcoming majorities by murder.

This Looks Rather Gloomy.

New York Graphic, Dem.

It is believed by democrats that Mr. Dana, that the democratic party must pursue the policy of "swarding" which has characterized it for the past twenty years. The majority of the party were loyal to the Union but the lead [illegible] induced them to support the cause of the Union only a half hearted way. The majority believe in tariff reform but the leaders insist that they shall ignore the tariff question or stultify themselves by declaring for protection or no tariff reform at all. Let them go into the contest on such a platform and with candidates 70, 80 or 90 years old and one of them already in the grave, and all will be well.

SISTER MARY JEROME.

The Pure Example and Worthy Life of a Devoted Woman—Her Appalling Sacrifice.

As Mary [illegible], the sister superior of the convent, was well known in many parts of the country, the following brief sketch will be interesting.

She had given all her life to the service of the church and was known in polite [illegible] as Barbara Hull. She was born forty four years ago in Pittsburg. Her parents were wealthy, and her education progressed under the most favorable circumstances. She passed through the novitiate course of the Sisters of Mercy at [illegible], and entered the convent of the congregation of Notre Dame in Milwaukee, when twenty years of age. Who her novitiate was completed she was sent to her superiors at New Orleans. She remained there a few years and was next assigned to Belleville in 1867 as superior of the new convent and academy of the Notre Dame sisters. The early history of the convent was full of financial embarrassments, and it was due to the good management of the young superior that in a short time the house was out of debt, during the [illegible] about $30,000 and was then remodeled and converted into a city. Nearly all the [illegible] by the wise management of Mother Jerome.

In addition to the large convent at Belleville, Mother Jerome found several other houses of the church in southern Illinois and extended them in the [illegible] of them, her government of the [illegible] missionary jurisdiction over [illegible] several convents south of Milwaukee. Through her jurisdiction where she was so well known and so well beloved, the sorrow will be built. She was a most faithful and amiable woman, beloved by every one who knew her. When the fire was raging, she might have saved herself being [illegible] she [illegible] from which all escaped save [illegible]. When others descended the ladder to safety her devotion and a truth was to save the lives of children intrusted to her care. Her self imposed task was fruitless, for also untrustworthy between the dormitory of the sisters and the dormitory of the children was cut off by flames at a different point and she perished in her heroic effort.

The [illegible] all near each other and the mother superior's body seemed to be a center for the ghastly circle. A box was packed to here and in it being drawn came the remains of part of roasted flesh. Here a burned skull was found and there an arm, while the trunks burned to a solid crisp, were dug up immediately under them. It was an awful exhumation and more than one would faltered because of the sickening sensation which overcame the workmen. It seemed that the burned heap would never be exhausted and over a few minutes there was a report that another new body had been found. Shreds of burned clothing clung to the sickening mass. It was impossible almost to find the identity of the bodies. The very finger of death having effaced every line and shape of countenance and form, the bodies in some instances came to pieces and the heap as it was uncovered to the eye was absolutely indescribable.

The Ritter at an Opera House Stage.

[illegible] Magazine.

As the stage is the point of any theatre especially vulnerable to fire, it is of prime importance to confine to the stage any fire that may originate there. This is accomplished not only by making the rest of the house incombustible, but by converting the rest of the stage itself into a flue inclosed in the brick walls which rise above the rest of the house. A large skylight in the roof of the stage is weighted so as to fall open when its fastenings are removed, and these fastenings are arranged to give way at a comparatively low temperature and thus open the top of this chimney of which the walls are the sides and the proscenium opening is the hearth. To put out fires which may arise on the stage reliance is placed both on the ordinary precautions, upon a novel automatic appliance. A network of small pipes is hung above the stage, filled with water from a tank in the roof, and pierced at frequent intervals with holes stopped with soft solder which melts readily and drenches the stage as from a great shower bath.

Metlakahtla Canned Clams.

British Colonist.

Arrangements have been made an there [illegible] to [illegible] canned clams of Metlakahtla [illegible] the Indian village, and now for the first time [illegible] an article of food in this market. [illegible] people in and around Victoria who have been accustomed to the [illegible] bivalves which are yielded from door to door [illegible] the [illegible] that the Indians will not eat [illegible] that has been [illegible] from the beach at [illegible] low tide. For their own use they dig for clams but once a month during the spring tides, when the water recedes a long distance from shore. Clams taken under the circumstances are nearly as delicious as oysters, being a peculiarly sweet flavor. The bivalves canned at Metlakahtla are taken at the lowest of spring tides, which accounts for their excellence. There is no reason why the business of canning and exporting clams should not be a lucrative one if care is taken in digging them at the proper time in preparing them for market.

THE RIVER.

The lights of the city glimmer
In the swift black wave below
Like ghosts that flit in the gloaming
The white ships come and go.

White and dim and stately
The good ships seaward go!
Luck to the captains and sailors
However the winds may blow!

White and dim and stately
The good ships homeward throng!
Welcome, captains and sailors,
Your voyage has been long!

And sweethearts' eyes shall glisten
And wives shall joyful be
As the little children listen
To your tales of the stormy sea.

But who are the wrecks you tell of
To the wreck of a love like mine
—The river murmurs and glitters
Above the cold stars shine.

AYLESFORD AND MARLBOROUGH.

A Noted Case Among England's Titled Aristocracy.

The following from the Chicago Tribune will explain a matter often alluded to in cable dispatches of late:

Lord Aylesford, the late husband of the lady who secured alimony in the London divorce court Tuesday, is now living at Big Springs, Tex., where he owns a ranch of 37,000 acres, which is however unstocked owing to the impecunious condition of his lordship. Aylesford, it is said, was led from the straight path by the prince of Wales, of whom he was a friend and boon companion. When Albert Edward visited India the young lord accompanied him, and his conduct was anything but proper. In the spree which he then kept up, and which lasted for several years, he lost £10,000, it is claimed. He had to give up his estate to trustees who are trying to pay off the mortgages. They allow him [illegible] a year. It is said he is waiting for his next stipend to stock his new farm. Lady Aylesford's [illegible] with the Marquis of Blandford, now the Duke of Marlborough, is also reported to have been [illegible] and [illegible] she had no difficulty in procuring a divorce from her husband she could not procure one sufficient to marry again. Neither could Marlborough when his wife procured a divorce from him [illegible]. The history of the two has [illegible] shocked [illegible] even among the English nobility. The Duke of Marlborough, a divorced wife however [illegible] to this with unblemished reputation, winning the sympathy of all who followed her [illegible] and Aylesford is very popular with the Texas cowboys, gamblers and the natives of Big Springs generally. He rides, shoots and plays cards with them, and is set down as a "boss fellow." He studiously avoids all intercourse with the feminine portion of the community, never recognizing any of the sex on any occasion. Mr. Jay Gould has taken considerable interest in him and is credited with carrying his ranch for him at the present time.

The logging camp belonging to W. M. Cochrane, situated four miles up Lake Washington, on Squak slough, was completely burned Saturday morning. The cause of the fire is unknown. As the men had removed there was nothing lost but the buildings, the blankets of the men in charge of the camp and about five tons of hay.

THE JUDGMENT OF PARIS.

What might the shepherd of Juno crave—
 Juno the Queen—by the tied tree?
Power, that maketh of man a slave,
 Crowned with a symbol of sovereignty;
 Power, that maketh from thence that he,
With a thirst naught slackens nor satisfies,
 Follows forever the thing that flee:—
But the world would be empty if men were wise!

What was the promise that Pallas gave—
 Pallas the cold, with the kirtled knee?
Learning, that diggeth for man a grave
 Under a pillar to pedantry;
 Learning, a mole that in earth can see,
And misses the message of air and skies;
 Learning that ever hath dust for fee:—
But the world would be empty if men were wise!

And the Dame that rose from the curling wave—
 The witch of the hill-top—what gave she?
Love, that maketh a man to rave
 For a vision that naught but a dream can be;
 Love, that fulfilleth his heart with glee,
Love, that freighteth his breast with sighs,
 Love, that must madden both you and me:
But the world would be empty if men were wise!

ENVOY.

Goddess of mine (for I bend to thee!)
 Look at me now with thy wine-dark eyes!
If Love be folly—ah! what care we?
 For the world would be empty if men were wise!

MacLEOD'S REVENGE.

The burg of Ben Vorarig once belonged to the chief of the McDonalds, who was styled An Gobach, or the beaky, in allusion to his great hook nose. Gobach was a bold and cunning man, who knew how to take advantage of the ignorance and superstition of his neighbors. He gave out that his life was charmed, so that steel could not cut him, nor fire burn him, nor water drown him. As a matter of fact he had never been wounded, though often in battle, and many believed that a glance of his eye could arrest the blow of a sword in mid-air.

Gobach was not on good terms with the chief of the MacLeods, who had a castle on the Jura coast, right opposite Ben Vorarig. Both chiefs derived a part of their income from the plunder of ships that passed through the sound or were wrecked on the coasts, and they often quarreled over the partition of the spoil.

MacLeod of the Spear was the opposite of Gobach in person and character, as well as in local situation. MacLeod was big and stupid, and where he failed with his weapons he did not succeed with his wits. But he was terribly strong, and unrivaled in the art of throwing the spear—hence his appellation. The head of his spear was seven stones in weight, the shaft of it was like the mast of a sloop, and with this formidable tool he could split a potato at fifty yards and kill birds on the wing.

Once when MacLeod was absent stealing cattle from a colony of Campbells who were settled in the north of Jura, a rich Danish merchantman stranded on Fraoch Eilean, near MacLeod's castle. Gobach witnessed the wreck from his watch tower, and knowing that MacLeod and most of his men were away, he sallied across the sound, beat off the garrison and carried home the booty. When MacLeod returned and heard what had happened he went into a rage, and sent to demand back the prize. Gobach told him to go to Jericho. A herald was dispatched by MacLeod to tell Gobach he was a thief. A pursuivant from Gobach informed MacLeod he was a pig. MacLeod hinted that if Gobach met him on Glas Eilean he would pull his beak for him. Gobach replied that he would be happy to give him an opportunity.

When MacLeod heard that his challenge was accepted he was in an ecstasy of delight. He felt sure of killing Gobach in single combat, though he would have hesitated to meet him at the head of his men, for he feared MacDonald's superior strategy.

All the MacDonalds, on the other hand, set up a howl of lamentation when they heard that their chief was to fight MacLeod of the Spear. They considered him a dead man already. The bard began to compose his marbhrann or elegy, and the piper to practice his coronach. Only Gobach himself showed no sign of emotion.

On the morning of the duel each marched down to the shore at the head of his men, with pipes playing and banners flying. MacLeod embarked first in a splendid war galley rowed by 50 men a side. When Gobach saw the display made by MacLeod he sent his men back to the castle, and in disdain of his enemy's magnificence, put off in a small, mean punt, accompanied only by a piper. But first he filled his sporran with periwinkles from the beach.

Glas Eilean is a little green island that used to be in the middle of the sound, but is now close to the Jura shore. MacLeod landed first, and began to excite himself for battle by slapping his thigh, shaking his spear and uttering yells that could be heard at Orkney. But his spirits fell when he saw Gobach sauntering leisurely toward him, crunching winkles and spitting out the shells, which was the general mode of eating that delicacy before pins were invented. This unnatural coolness terrified MacLeod. He could not understand a man meeting death in so unconcerned a manner. There must be some trap laid for him. All he had ever heard of MacDonald's supernatural powers flashed upon his memory, and he heartily repented of having offered to pull Gobach's nose.

MacDonald won the toss, and had the right to the first shy. But he laughed lightly, and told MacLeod to shoot away, as he preferred eating winkles to throwing spears; and he pulled another handful from his sporran, and began to pick out the biggest. This completed MacLeod's demoralization. He trembled in every joint. He thought he saw blue flames playing around the point of his spear when he raised it against MacDonald. He felt sure he would be carried away by demons should he strike. So he claimed the right of postponing his shot until another time.

"When and where you please," said Gobach, and rowed back to Islay.

Years passed and MacLeod had not claimed his right of spearing MacDonald. But he had not forgotten it. A sorceress had told him that at the end of seven years MacDonald would be disenchanted, and as vulnerable as other men, and MacLeod was waiting for the time to expire. It was observed that he exposed himself less in battle than he used formerly to do, and he practiced more assiduously than ever at throwing the spear. He kept a dungeon full of prisoners—Scandinavians chiefly, with some English and Irish, and a sprinkling of Galloway Picts—on whom to exercise for an hour daily before dinner. By that means we acquired a quite fabulous skill in wielding his favorite weapon.

The seven years came to end, and one bright morning strains of jubilant music floated across the kyle, and smote on the rude senses of MacLeod.

"What tam piobaireachd is that?" he bawled.

"It is the wedding march of the MacDonald," answered his henchman.

"His wedding march, eh?" A savage gleam shot athwart the face of MacLeod. "Bring my spear," he shouted. "It is another march the Gobach will be piping before the sun sets."

MacLeod seized the spear, and was rowed across the sound.

"I'll spoil his honeymoon for him," he ejaculated, as he sweated up Ben Vorarig. He arrived at the castle gate.

"Tell the MacDonald," he roared, "that the MacLeod has come to pay his debt."

MacLeod was admitted and led into the great hall, where MacDonald and his bride were feasting among their kin and clansmen.

"It is a welcome guest you are this day, MacLeod," said MacDonald courteously. "Sit down and share our banquet."

"I will do that same," answered MacLeod, leaning his spear against the wall. "Business first and pleasure afterwards," and he fell to.

When the feast was over, and the ladies had retired to the drawing room, MacDonald ordered a space to be cleared on the floor, then measured out the distance, and told MacLeod he was ready. So fine was the sense of honor among the ancient Gaels, that not a MacDonald present would have stirred a finger to defend his chief against a foeman who had a right to strike the blow.

MacLeod reached for his spear.

Said Gobach, "You take a long time to pay your debts, MacLeod."

"But when I pay I pay with interest," answered MacLeod, poising his weapon.

"Ten to one you don't do it now, you old walrus," said MacDonald, picking his teeth with the point of his dirk.

Again the mesmeric influence of the superior mind overcame the animal nature of MacLeod. Once, twice he raised his spear, but it wavered like a magnetic needle. The thought of being a second time baulked of his revenge goaded him to madness. "Oh, if he would but wince," he groaned, "or show a sign of fear!"

Suddenly a woman's shriek rang through the castle, and an awful spasm convulsed the face of McDonald.

"Ha, ha! the spell is broken!" yelled MacLeod, and in an instant MacDonald was transfixed to the wall, as dead as a dried cockchafer.

By the orders of Gobach's widow, MacLeod was suspended head downwards for twenty-four hours, and was then boiled in a cavity which is still known as MacLeod's Pot (Poit Mhic Mac Leoid). It is very like a disused limekiln. She then seized and destroyed his castle, and all but exterminated his people. And, not content with merely leveling her enemy's stronghold, she caused every stone of it to be thrown into the Sound of Islay. That is the reason no trace of a castle is to be seen on that part of Jura, which is conclusive proof that this narrative is true, for if the castle had not been thus thrown into the sea, some relic of it would certainly have remained to this day.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

MONDAY, March 10.

General trade opens up well for the new week, which promises to be an active one. The produce movement is quite fair, although values generally are not satisfactory. For several days rumors have been floated to the effect that some of our merchants had made assignments, but we are glad to know such is not the case. As stated nearly a month ago, the bulk of those who were in financial straits have been heard from and there is constantly less dread of failures. Trade is receiving an impetus that will be shortly felt all along the line. Commercial travelers report having secured a fair amount of orders in the interior, with these constantly showing an increase.

A very light fall of snow was had here early yesterday morning, but has since disappeared because of rain. The day passes with alternate sun and rain, with light shower of hail. Cloudy weather is reported from the eastern section, with snow last night beyond Willows. At Riparia the fall was 2 inches, at Dayton 4 inches, at Walla Walla 3 inches, at Pendleton 4 inches, and at Wallula and Umatilla a light fall. This side of Willows, cloudy to fair weather. The thermometer ranged from 34 to 48. The Snake, at Riparia, is 3 feet 2 inches above low water mark. At The Dalles the Columbia is 2 feet 2 inches above, and at Bonneville 5 feet 1 inch above. The Willamette shows some rise. California is having more rain.

Overland receipts include 123 tubs butter, 20 cs maple syrup, 400 hf 50 bxs candles, 11 cs cod, 4 bbls 2 cs confectionery, 1 cs cigarettes, 167 pkgs tobacco, 900 cs coal oil.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 48 hours: 2948 ctls wheat, 2818 bbls flour, 677 ctls oats, 11 ctls bran, 243 ctls middlings, 857 sks potatoes, 4710 lbs hides, 102 cs eggs, 25,611 lbs hops, 235 bxs fruit, 7 bxs butter, 41 bls hay. Also 2670 ctls wheat, 3580 bbls flour, 114 ctls bran, 52 ctls middlings, 1515 lbs hides from the eastern section.

SALMON SHIPMENT—Per str Oregon, March 7: Scandinavian, 88; Cook, 188; Thomas & Knowles, 1500. Total, 2776 cases.

IMPORTS—Per Br ship Eskdale, from Liverpool to Balfour, Guthrie & Co.: 1200 bxs tin plate, 301 tons pig iron, 600 tons salt, 300 kgs bi-carb soda, 300 bbls soda crystals, 180 cs mineral water, 200 bbls bottled stout, 37 pkgs earthenware.

Per Br ship River Indus, from Newcastle, N. S. W., to C. Cesar & Co.: 1516 tons coal.

FREIGHTS—The situation is unchanged with nothing doing along the coast. The Eskdale is on the disengaged list. The Br iron bark Alpheta, 553 tons, is entered out at London for this port. The amount of tonnage headed for this coast shows some increase, being now 147,600, against 130,100 last month. It is quite certain that there has been no chartering ahead thus far with us, and reports of it being done in San Francisco are flatly denied.

WHEAT—To-day's advices from the other side are quiet and steady, while our own markets are less firm. It is stated that strong attempts are soon to be made to force up Chicago and New York. Those markets are now as high as justified, but the workers are not satisfied. Wheat in the western states is being sold to millers at a figure that would not admit shipment to the seaboard. Our market continues very quiet with no transactions on the spot. The interior reports some changing hands at last quotations. Receipts are larger at this point.

FLOUR—A weak market rules, although standards are bringing quotations. A portion of receipts will go into ship. The San Francisco market is a weak one to sell in. We quote standards $5, less trade discount.

MILLSTUFF—The demand is supplied at last quotations with first values steady under present only fair offerings.

OATS—Market weak at 40@42½c for fair to extra choice feed. The demand does not improve.

POTATOES—Plenty offering at 50@55c. Supplies are more than equal to the demand.

FRUIT—Receipts include a small proportion of choice apples, which are in some request at $2@2 25. Inferior rather neglected at $1 25@1 75.

HAY—Receipts larger and values are less firm.

POULTRY—For the moment stocks are low and an advance on $6 is deemed possible for chickens. Expected receipts will weaken this quotation. Ducks wanted at fancy prices.

EGGS—While receipts have been larger all are firm holders for 30c, and this is shaded only to the trade.

THE STOCK MARKET.

The Demand for Union Pacific the Only Feature of the Day.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Governments firm. Railways firm. Stocks [illegible]. Union Pacific, however, was a feature. In early trading and afterward, stock being in good demand at 3 to 5 per cent. per diem. In the afternoon the difference between this and regular was 1 to 2 per cent. The scarcity of stock is partly due to the closing of the books for dividend purposes, and partly to selling it [illegible]. Union Pacific sold, ex dividend of 1¾ per cent., at 78⅛@78¾@78, in the last hour.

Compared with Saturday, closing prices were ¼ to ⅞ per cent. lower.

The mining stock market opened active and weak, and prices declined during the morning. In the afternoon there was a slight improvement for some stocks. Robinson sold at 57, Hale & Norcross at $1 50@1 30, Iron Silver at $[illegible], Eureka at $2 35, Grand Prize 10, Sutro 15, Caledonia 19, Dunes 15, Con. Virginia 20 and Sonora 7.

Perry's Singing Birds.

Washington Letter.

Perry was a rich planter in the Patuxent valley, with a broad vein of humor. The broad, deep Patuxent afforded an excellent cruising ground to the British fleet after it had landed the British troops. One day, while the British ships were lying in the river, Perry took a well-filled hornet's nest, plugged up its opening, put on his working clothes and rowed up to the flagship. In the uncouth local dialect he offered the gray ball to the young officers as a nest full of rare singing birds of remarkable voice, of unusual intelligence and warm attachments. The officers clubbed together and offered him a guinea for his birds. This he gratefully accepted and then handed the nest to the unsuspecting young men. He suggested to them that it would be well not to open the nest till he got to shore, inasmuch as the affection of the little things might follow their own friend. This was an excellent suggestion. To make sure the officers took the nest into the cabin and shut the doors, leaving a marine on deck to catch Perry's signal. As soon as Perry felt sure of his retreat on the shore he gave the marine the signal. At the word the officers opened the nest, and, without any unnecessary delay, the cabin door also. With somewhat undignified haste, officers, marines and seamen swarmed to the bulwarks, and then over the side, in comical confusion, closely followed by Perry's affectionate little singing birds. Perry laughed till he cried, as one by one the Britishers sought the cool shelter of the placid Patuxent.

Heavy Decline.

The New York Tribune published a few days ago a table showing the decline which has taken place in some of the leading railroad securities since July, 1881—the date of the shooting of President Garfield. The comparison is made between the prices ruling at the beginning of July, 1881, and the closing prices of 1883, and the table exhibits an average decline of 36 per cent., the decline ranging from 12 per cent. in Lackawanna to 85 per cent. in Denver and Rio Grande. The total shrinkage amounts to $424,000,000; and this in stocks which represent only about one third of the railway capital of the country. No account is taken either of the shrinkage in the value of railway bonds, which, although much less, is quite considerable. The Tribune's estimate places the aggregate decline of values at $1,500,000,000, but if this be too large by one-third the startling fact would remain that there has been a decline in the value of railway securities of one thousand million dollars in two years and a half.

The Rev. Joseph Cook says there is nothing new in the announcement of Mrs. Cook's intention to lecture, since she has manifested intentions of that sort for several years.

ASTORIA TIDE TABLE.

From the Pacific Tide Tables of the United States Coast Survey.

The hours between midnight and noon are designated by a (A. M.); those between noon and midnight by p (P. M.). 0h. 00m. denotes midnight; 12h. 00m. denotes noon. The height is reckoned from the level of average lower low waters to which the soundings are given on the coast survey charts.

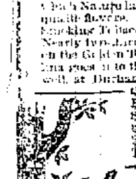
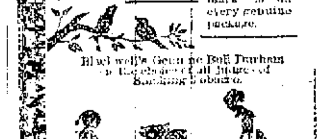
"Will the coming man smoke?" was settled by Prof. Fish in his charming pamphlet. He says, moreover, that the rational way to use tobacco is through the pipe. All agree that only the best tobacco should be used. Which is the best? That to which Nature has contributed the most exquisite flavors. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco fills this bill completely. Nearly two-thirds of all the tobacco grown on the Golden Tobacco belt of North Carolina goes into the manufactory of Blackwell, at Durham. They buy the pick of the entire section. Hence Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is the best of the tobaccos. Don't be deceived when you buy. The Durham Bull trade-mark is on every genuine package.



Blackwell's Genuine Bull Durham is the choicest of all brands of Smoking Tobacco.



TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. DR. PAUL M. BRENNAN.

IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PHYSICIAN ON the Pacific coast in the treatment of all Chronic and Difficult Diseases of the Sexual Organs.

He will guarantee to cure any form of disease of the generative organs or private diseases, if the patient follows his advice and treatment.

He has become an expert in the treatment of diseases, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the FOLLIES OF YOUTH, such as Spermatorrhea or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Vitality. Nearly two-thirds of all the chronic diseases arise either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by a majority of the Medical Profession.

Persons afflicted by any form of sexual disease or weakness often delay in calling on the proper physician in time from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance, and permit their diseases to go on until their constitution becomes corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death comes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence. Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances. Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, and all diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure by them all, if they are curable, and if not, he will tell you so.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

Office—Nos. 132 and 134 Third street, corner of Alder, opposite Masonic Hall.

DR. CHEEVER'S ELECTRIC BELT, or Regenerator, is made expressly for the cure of derangements of the generative organs. Whenever any debility of the generative organs occurs, from whatever cause, the continuous stream of ELECTRICITY permeating through the parts must restore them to healthy action. There is no mistake about this instrument. Years of use have tested it, and thousands of cures are testified to. Weakness from Indiscretion, Incapacity, Lack of Vigor, Sterility—in fact, any trouble of these organs is cured. Do not confound this with electric belts advertised to cure all ills from head to toe. POTASH.

Iodide of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with Blood or Skin Diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Swift's Specific is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merit.

I have cured permanently Blood Taint in the third generation by the use of Swift's Specific, after I had most signally failed with Mercury and Potash.

F. A. TOOMER, M. D., Perry, Georgia.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of Blood Poison by the use of your Specific, after all other treatment had failed.

TRIED HOT SPRINGS TWO LONG YEARS WITHOUT RELIEF.

Mercurial Rheumatism made me a cripple. After trying the springs two years, and the Mercury and Potash treatment until I was a skeleton and unable to do anything, I was prevailed upon to take a course of S. S. S. After taking three bottles, my appetite began to improve, and I gained flesh rapidly. When I had taken twelve bottles I felt as well as I ever did. It is now twelve months since I took S. S. S. My health and appetite are good, and I am able to attend to all the business I can get.

CHAS. BERG, Hot Springs, Jan. 1, 1883.

"PUT ME SQUARE ON MY FEET."

Twelve months ago I was persuaded to try S. S. S. for Malarial Rheumatism, which had crippled me so that I was unable to attend to business. Less than twelve bottles have put me square on my feet; have steadily improved; haven't felt better in ten years.
